

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 26 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:

Mostly dry. Some sunshine for many, but chilly nights.

This Evening and Tonight:

Southern and central areas largely clear with a fairly widespread frost and some fog patches, focused in south Wales and the southwest. Turning cloudier and breezier across Scotland and Northern Ireland, with patchy rain, so less cold here.

Saturday:

Band of cloud and odd spot of rain sinking into parts of northern England. Southern areas, along with eastern Scotland seeing decent amounts of sunshine and feeling pleasant by afternoon.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:

Continuing largely dry with some sunshine for most but some cloudier exceptions. Patchy overnight frost and fog but afternoon temperatures recovering well in the sunnier areas, where feeling pleasant.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.